

FAMILY: WE WANT JUSTICE FOR MARK

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A HIGHLY-CHARGED vigil in memory of Mark Duggan on Saturday heard that the family will continue to fight for justice.

The event in Tottenham, attended by around 500 people, was organised as a "mark of love and respect" for the 29-year-old father-of-six, just days after an inquest jury concluded he was lawfully killed – a verdict described as "perverse" by the family's legal team.

Mr Duggan was fatally shot by an armed police officer in Ferry Lane, Tottenham, in August 2011, with his death sparking riots in Tottenham and across the country.

Saturday's vigil, which was held in front of Tottenham police station, in High Road, began with a minute's silence.

The chant "no justice, no peace" rang out numerous times throughout the event and shouts of "murderers" were directed at police.

Mr Duggan's mother Pam was emotional throughout the vigil and spoke just a few words, thanking people for their support.

Her sister Carole told a roaring crowd that her nephew had been demonised in news reports.

She said: "We are here today in memory of Mark. The way he was, not the way he has been portrayed to be. We want to show this country we are not this gangster family. We are just an ordinary family."

Ms Duggan called for a new Independent Police Complaints Commission investigation into the shooting.

She said: "The inquest took three months to come to its conclusions. They were given a bundle of evidence by the IPCC. The inquest outcome is not the responsibility of the jury, but of the IPCC. They must now do a proper investigation.

"They know they didn't do a thorough job because they were investigating their own people – 65 per cent of IPCC members are ex-police and I believe that's why Mark did not get the justice he should have got."

The vigil was staged exactly 15 years after the death in police custody of Tottenham resident Roger Sylvester.

An inquest into his death concluded that the killing was unlawful. This verdict was quashed on appeal at the High Court in 2004.

Stafford Scott, co-ordinator of advocacy group Tottenham Rights, told the crowd: "A High Court judge quashed the unlawful killing verdict in the case of Roger Sylvester because he said the jury was confused.

Now we can go to the High Court because in this case the jury was confused, too.

"We do this because we have to, for our children. And we do this for our country. We do this because we want to make it a fair place to live in for everyone."

The crowd reacted furiously when Mr Scott highlighted the absence of Tottenham MP David Lammy, who had been invited on Saturday by the Duggan family.

Diane Abbott, MP for neighbouring Hackney North and Stoke Newington, attended the vigil but did not speak.

The event concluded with 12 white doves being released in a symbolic gesture of peace, before the crowd dispersed peacefully by 4.15pm.

How the inquest jury reached its conclusions

- The jury unanimously ruled Mark Duggan had had a gun with him when the minicab in which he was travelling was stopped by police.
- With a majority of nine to one, the jury concluded it was "more likely than not" that

- the gun, which ended up in the grass verge along Ferry Lane, Tottenham, had been thrown there by Mr Duggan.
- Eight jurors concluded they were sure Mr Duggan did not have a gun in his hand when he was shot by police.
- However, the jury found

- the killing lawful, based on the idea the police marksman had an honestly held belief he needed to use force to defend himself against Mr Duggan, and that the force used was "reasonable".
- The jury reached a majority verdict of eight to two.

Legal challenge to 'perverse' verdict is being considered

THE family of Mark Duggan is considering legal action in a bid to quash the inquest verdict which concluded that the 29-year-old was lawfully killed.

Solicitors acting for the family said that they are considering the option of launching a judicial review against the decision which they described as "perverse".

Last Wednesday jurors at the Royal Courts of Justice – by a majority verdict of eight to two – ruled the dad-of-six was not holding a gun when he was shot by a police marksman in Ferry Lane, Tottenham, in August 2011, and that the killing was lawful.

On Saturday, the family's solicitor Marcia Willis Stewart told the Advertiser she was reviewing the "legal position".

Community activists have said the verdict has led to a further deterioration of relations between the community and the police.

And Haringey Council leader Claire Kober said the authority would be "challenging the police to work harder than ever to repair their fractured relationship with the community".

Met Police Commissioner Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe said last week: "Community leaders have told me of the dismay and anger at the verdict. We have all talked about our belief that we must move forward.

"This is about a relationship. It has much history and many difficult moments over the years. And yet the positive and constructive way in which we have discussed this challenge gives me great hope for the future."

Meanwhile, the inquest coroner Judge Keith Cutler has taken the unusual step of inviting the Duggan family to help shape police gun policy as he writes a report into the case.

"Given the significant profile of this case, I want to ensure that this process is transparent to all interested parties and the general public," he said

Osborne launches bid to help small business

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

CHANCELLOR George Osborne visited the borough last week to launch a scheme which will see businesses' National Insurance contributions cut in a bid to boost the economy.

Mr Osborne, accompanied by Enfield North MP Nick de Bois, called in at The Ridgeway Garage, a family-owned business in The Ridgeway, Enfield, which stands to gain around £2,000 a year from the initiative, the Employment Allowance, which starts in April.

The allowance will see employers' National Insurance contributions, which go towards the cost of a number of key welfare benefits, reduced as a result of the abolition of contributions for employees under the age of 21 from April 2015, and raise the threshold before a business starts paying the tax.

The Treasury says the move will save more than 1.25million companies a total of £5.5billion – and 90 per cent of those who will benefit are small businesses.

Mr Osborne said: "The Employment Allowance will boost businesses up and down the country and allow them to retain extra cash which they can use to invest in their business and take on more staff."

Asked how he could justify a £5.5bn reduction in income for the Treasury

while cutting expenditure in other areas to bring down the national deficit, Mr Osborne said: "We have had to make savings elsewhere in government spending so we can afford these measures, which create jobs."

Gary Needham, who took over the running of the garage from his father David in 2010, said: "This has come at the right time for us, and with the money we save we are hoping to install a new tyre bay."

"I would also like to see VAT brought back down from 20 to 17.5 per cent, the way it used to be."

Mr de Bois, who was a member of the committee that drew up the legislation, said: "The garage here is well-established, independent, growing and has been sustained through some difficult times. This is why it was a good business to launch this policy at."

"Small businesses such as this are crucial to the economy and we rely on the taxes they pay for our schools and hospitals. We are rebuilding the Enfield economy and we have got to create the jobs. The growth is in the private sector and this is where our efforts should be directed at."

Tory MP blasts BNP leafleting

AN MP has reacted angrily to the "scaremongering" tactics of a far-right political party which has been canvassing the borough's residents.

After he was shown a British National Party leaflet that was posted through the letter box of one of his Enfield North constituents, Nick de Bois accused the BNP of "attempting to create tension for political gain".

The leaflet asks residents: "Alarmed by the threat of Islam to your British identity?" and goes on to refer to scenarios in which pubs are converted into mosques, which, it claims, will "threaten British identity".

Mr de Bois is furious the leaflets have been distributed in the borough and told the Advertiser: "This type of 'copy and paste' literature, which doesn't even try to focus on problems in Enfield, is just scaremongering. This type of leaflet is designed to stir up racial tension for the purposes of political gain."

"It is reprehensible and people in Enfield will see straight through it."

A spokesman for the BNP said they were campaigning in the borough because London was "being turned into a foreign country".

He said that Mr de Bois was in a "state of denial" and added: "The fact is we are looking at the wholesale repression of the British and English population."

Referring to claims in the leaflet that the BNP is fighting for animal rights by opposing halal meat, which is described as "ritual slaughter", he said: "Halal food is barbaric. It belongs somewhere 5,000 years ago. If people want to do that, I suggest they go and do it in another country as it is completely unnecessary."

M25 mayhem: A lorry driver died, left, and three workers were injured, right, in two of the four accidents within days of each other in October and November last year

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

ROADWORKS that have carved up a swathe of the M25 near Enfield did not cause a spate of serious accidents last year, a Highways Agency report has concluded.

The Secretary of State for Transport Patrick McLoughlin commissioned the report after Enfield North MP Nick de Bois demanded the minister urgently answered questions about why four serious accidents happened between junctions 23 and 25 of the M25 within days of each other.

The report does however confirm that three of the four accidents involved a temporary safety barrier set up to cordon off the roadworks.

The report states that the first of the accidents occurred on Tuesday, October 29, on the junction 25 clockwise slip road when an HGV driver indicated that he was exiting the motorway.

According to the report, the lorry

Roadworks not to blame for series of motorway crashes

clipped part of a temporary metal barrier used to segregate roadworks from the main motorway.

The lorry overturned and caught fire, killing the driver.

Although the second incident, which occurred on October 31, did not result in any injuries and did not involve the temporary barrier, the report states that the third collision, on November 1 when three workers were seriously injured, and the fourth collision, the next day, which left a driver and passenger seriously injured, both involved the temporary barrier.

Despite the fact that the roadworks appeared to be directly involved in three of the four accidents, Mr McLoughlin wrote to Mr de Bois to say: "In the context of other similar roadworks sites and current approaches to roadworks management, the road layout is compliant with standards, speed compliance is good and the overall number of incidents is comparatively low."

But the secretary of state added that a more detailed investigation would follow.

Mr de Bois admits he is frustrated with some aspects of the report. He told the Advertiser: "I have taken time out to talk to haulage companies and constituents who share my concern that the traffic management makes accidents more likely and passengers very vulnerable."

"This interim report worries me with its findings because it leaves more questions than answers and clearly more work needs to be done to ensure drivers can be as safe as possible."

Asked about the specifics of future reports, a spokesman from the Highways Agency said: "We have begun work on the longer-term analysis of safety at roadworks."

"Safety is a top priority for the Highways Agency and this is why we continually monitor safety across our network, including through roadworks, and take action where appropriate."

"While the initial investigation into the incidents between junctions 23 and 25 of the M25 last year concluded that the overall safety performance of the roadworks is good, we are not complacent and remain committed to further improving safety for both road users and road workers."

Husband praises caring A&E staff

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN has praised hospital emergency staff for the "fantastic" care his wife received.

Joan Lee, 87, of Crofton Way, Enfield, fell ill with a chest infection on the evening of December 29 and her husband Roy, 85, who has cared for her ever since she suffered a stroke in 2006, immediately called 111 for help.

Mr Lee became concerned when his wife did not open her eyes or mouth, having suffered from a bad cough and breathing problems for a number of days.

"I was very worried and I rang 111," he told the Advertiser. "Luckily, the lady on the other line was fantastic. She kept me on the phone while she arranged for a paramedic to be sent to our home, who arrived within ten minutes."

Mr Lee said that the paramedic immediately phoned an ambulance, which arrived within 15 minutes and took the couple to Barnet Hospital.

Chase Farm Hospital is just around the corner from the couple's home.

But since the accident and emergency department at the hospital, in The Ridgeway, was closed in December, emergency patients have been redirected to North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, or Barnet Hospital, in Wellhouse Lane, High Barnet.

Mrs Lee, a great-grandmother, was resuscitated at Barnet A&E.

Her husband said: "The A&E was very busy, but a doctor and nurse came straightaway to do tests on my wife and get an X-ray done.

Emergency care:
Joan Lee with her husband Roy

ANNE MARIE SANDERSON

"By 10pm, they had found her a bed on Quince ward in a nice en suite room.

"I could not fault the hospital whatsoever. It did surprise me because of everything you read. The staff and treatment my wife received were absolutely fantastic. It has left me with a very good feeling."

Mrs Lee was diagnosed with a chest and urine infection and was prescribed antibiotics. She was discharged on January 2 and is now recovering at home.

Lorraine Chowdry, matron at Barnet Hospital's A&E department, said: "I thank Mr Lee for taking the time to make these comments, particularly when experiencing the worry of his wife's sudden illness.

"As matron of the emergency department, it is wonderful to hear of Mr and Mrs Lee's positive experience and I will certainly pass this on to the team."

Support life-saving Air Ambulance, urges MP

By Koos Couvee

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

EDMONTON MP Andy Love has encouraged residents to donate to London's Air Ambulance as the life-saving charity service celebrates its 25th anniversary.

Mr Love praised the work of the air ambulance last Thursday as he highlighted the 44 critical incidents the service was called to attend people in Edmonton during 2013.

Mr Love said: "Hundreds of people in Edmonton have the air ambulance crew's fast and effective work over the past 25 years to thank for their lives."

"The fact that the service attended 44 incidents in my constituency last year alone gives us some idea of the mammoth undertaking they have to save lives across the capital."

"Road traffic accidents, falls from height, stabbings and shootings and many other incidents come within the remit of the air ambulance."

Mr Love is hoping that by highlighting its efforts, the charity will gain the funds to acquire a much-needed second helicopter and additional pilots, which it said will enable it to reach an additional 400 patients a year.

Graham Hodgkin, chief executive of London's Air Ambulance, said: "It is thanks to the generosity of the people of London that we are here today commemorating this milestone."

Vital: The Air Ambulance attended 44 incidents in Edmonton last year

"We are constantly looking for ways to enhance our service and by raising money to acquire a second helicopter and to recruit more crew we believe we will be able to reach more patients by air, giving them a better chance of survival."

"We urge the people and businesses of London to sign up as regular supporters to the charity to help us save more lives together."

Since its inception, the service has treated more than 30,000 critically injured patients in the capital and attended most major incidents.

From its base at the Royal London Hospital, in Whitechapel, east London, the helicopter can reach any patient inside the M25 within 15 minutes.

Mr Love added: "The reality is that without its service, many more people would die and with a second helicopter, many more people would live. Please donate if you can."

Donations can be made at www.londonairambulance.co.uk/donate

Don't ditch bags, compost them

SHOPPERS will be able to use their carrier bags to compost kitchen waste in a scheme being launched by a supermarket chain.

The Co-operative has introduced compostable carrier bags into its Enfield stores.

They will provide an alternative to plastic bags, which often end up in landfill sites and can take hundreds of years to degrade.

The supermarket chain has made the move because Enfield Council's services allow for the recycling of household food and garden waste.

Adi Nathan, the Co-operative Food's regional operations manager in Enfield, said: "Every compostable carrier bag used is one less conventional plastic shopping bag in circulation."

"We believe they will have a significant impact upon the number of plastic bags which end up in landfill sites every year."

The bags will cost 6p each and will be strong enough to carry shopping. They will be available from the stores in Hertford Road, Lancaster Road and Leighton Road from today.

Lightning strike brings down chimney on home

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Crashing down: A house in Edmonton was hit by lightning, causing damage to the chimney, with bricks damaging a car and two roofs

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN whose Edmonton home was hit by lightning on Monday evening said it was "like a bomb explosion".

John Vlachos, 64, of Croyland Road, was sitting on the sofa watching television with his wife Anna, 62, just before 6pm when the chimney of the house they have owned for more than 20 years was struck by a lightning bolt.

"We were sitting in the front room watching TV and suddenly heard a huge bang," said the mechanical engineer.

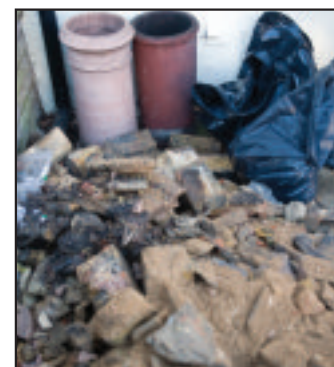

"It sounded like a bomb explosion. The next moment debris and dust came down through our chimney and landed in our fireplace. The electricity went off, leaving us in the dark.

"I ran out and realised the house had been hit by lightning, so I went back inside and quickly turned off the gas. We felt quite panicked."

The London Fire Brigade sent two fire engines to the house and officers from Enfield Police cordoned off Croyland Road between the junctions of Balham Road and Chiswick Road.

An LFB spokeswoman said: "The chimney was in a precarious position, so we broke part of it off and moved the bricks onto the ground."

Mr Vlachos' car was damaged after being hit by bricks which had fallen down from the chimney, while the roof of his home was damaged – as was the roof of a neighbouring property, which is currently unoccupied.

The 64-year-old said his son Alex, 30, had been in contact with his insurance company, who had told the family they would send cleaners to deal with the layer of black dust which has gathered in the living room as a result of the lightning strike.

"I think we were hit because our chimney is slightly higher than our neighbours', that may have attracted the lightning," added Mr Vlachos.

"I would like to thank the police and fire brigade because they responded immediately."

The fire brigade said the incident was under control before 7.30pm. The road was reopened at 9.20pm.

MP loves homes plan

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A REGENERATION scheme in the south-east corner of the borough has been endorsed publicly by the area's MP.

Edmonton MP Andy Love visited the construction site on the former Highmead Estate, where Countryside Properties – the company also charged with regenerating the Alma Estate, in Ponders End – is laying the groundwork for 118 new homes.

Forty per cent of the new estate will be set aside as affordable housing, which will be run by housing association Newlon Housing Trust.

It was this aspect of the development, with residents paying up to 80 per cent of the market value of the homes, which has impressed Mr Love.

Speaking after a tour of the site, the MP said: "It is great that, after so many years, the estate is finally being redeveloped. It really is an exciting project and I particularly welcome the addition of much-needed affordable homes."

Former residents of the estate have been rehoused elsewhere in the borough while the construction work takes place. It is due to be completed by the summer of 2015.

The council's vision for the scheme involves regenerating a deprived corner of the borough and the project includes building more than 1,000 square metres of retail and business space.

And the developers will also be working with the NHS to provide a new health centre.

Chickenshed Theatre

FIRSTLY, let me introduce myself. I was born in Chase Side Nursing Home, in Southgate, and have lived and worked all my life in the borough.

I am also the co-founder of Chickenshed, and it is in this capacity that I have been given the wonderful opportunity to write a regular column.

Forty years ago I met Mary Ward, a teacher who had moved to the area. She was encouraged to get involved with the youth club at The Church of Christ the King in Bramley Road. Eventually, after continued persuasion, nay nagging, she strolled down there from her house in Oakwood.

I had been working there along with a fellow musician friend, Anthony Filby, writing and producing a religious rock musical, and we were bathing in its great local success. In fact, we were wondering what to do next – enter Mary Ward, right on cue!

We talked for two minutes and we clicked. We had the same aspirations, the same passion that within the infinite possibilities of theatre, you could work with all people of all ages, regardless of experience. Basically, anyone who genuinely wanted to take part could go on this wonderful journey of self-discovery and self-worth alongside their peers.

We had use of the church hall, but that had its limitations, and we needed somewhere with more freedom to blossom and grow.

A farm seemed the perfect place to do that very thing – for that is what happens on a farm, isn't it? You grow, you blossom and you bear fruit.

Enter Lady Elizabeth Byng, from the Wrotham Park Estate – and a 40-year adventure which has made Chickenshed what it is today. More next time.

Broomfield Park cafe to open in the spring

RE: Recent correspondence regarding the future of Broomfield House and the need for a "decent refreshment facility in Broomfield Park" (Letters, Advertiser, January 8).

Readers will be delighted to learn, if they haven't already, of plans to open a not-for-profit community cafe in the park this spring.

The Palmers Greenery is a grass-roots initiative, in association with the Friends of Broomfield Park and in partnership with Enfield Council, to convert the disused toilet block opposite the tennis courts into a kiosk with an indoor kitchen, a serving hatch, outdoor seating and toilet/baby-changing facilities.

We will be child (and dog) friendly and serve affordable, healthy and, where possible, locally-sourced drinks and snacks.

Staffed by volunteers from the community, all surplus generated will be reinvested directly back into enhancing the park.

This project has been developed specifically as a forerunner of, not an alternative to, any future cafe in a restored or rebuilt Broomfield House.

With the aim of cutting through the Refreshing idea: Sarah Cotton, fourth right, is among those behind the planned cafe in Broomfield Park

stalemate that has seen park visitors denied any kind of decent refreshment facility for so long, the Palmers Greenery will provide park users not only with a say in what a future cafe might look like but also with a cuppa and slice of home-made cake in the meantime. For more information or to get involved, visit www.friendsofbroomfieldpark.org/cafe.php

Theatre equal to the West End

WHENEVER I watch a play or show at Millfield Theatre, I have noticed that the standard is equal to any West End theatre

Edmonton should feel proud to have such a wonderful facility that can cater to all tastes and ages with educational shows equal to any theatre in the land.

Recent pantomime Dick Whittington was a musical extravaganza that saw the theatre full to capacity at every show, and thrilled audiences of all ages.

Congratulations should be given to all involved in such excellent productions that have helped to put Edmonton firmly on the map.

As one pantomime ends, it's time to think of this year's and I would advise you to reserve your seats now for The Sleeping Beauty, which will run from November 2014 until January 2015.

Millfield House Arts Centre, in Silver Street, houses the public library where you can borrow books or use the computers or free wi-fi.

There is also a bistro and people of all ages can benefit from the variety of classes available, including dancing, music and painting.

Millfield Theatre is part of the community and encourages young people to participate in production.

Taxing subject

I NOTE that the Labour council, in its 2014/15 budget consultation, rightly celebrates five years without a council tax increase.

What it fails to mention is that the 2010/11 freeze in council tax was implemented by the Conservative council and funded through prudent financial management.

Also, each council tax freeze since has been funded by the Conservative government – and not directly from its own resources.

Long may this Conservative policy continue.

Keep closures to a minimum

BARROWELL Green Recycling Centre will be shut for a week in February. (Advertiser, January 8).

This is the third time in just over year that this facility has been closed.

I am sure there are good reasons for each closure, but would it not have been better for these works to have been coordinated so that they could have been done at the same time, therefore limiting the amount of times the centre has needed to be closed?

The Barrowell Green centre is a much-used council facility.

The Labour authority charges for old bulky items to be collected from home, so it is imperative that this facility is not often closed to enable residents to dispose of them free of charge.

I am asking that, if possible, Enfield Council coordinates the centre's maintenance programme in the future so that there are fewer periods of closure.

Joanne Laban
Shadow cabinet member for environment, Enfield Council

Right to fight parking ticket

MRS T York is right to appeal against the parking ticket under the circumstances she describes (Letters, Advertiser, December 11). She should do so through the independent parking ombudsman.

My son, who lives in Cambridge, received a CCTV-generated parking ticket when he stopped to obtain painkillers from a chemist.

His appeal to the council was turned down, so he went to the ombudsman, who upheld his appeal on the following grounds: the council could not provide evidence of the formal licensing of the CCTV cameras, so it was not adhering to the government's code of practice regarding CCTV cameras and non-moving traffic offences.

From the ombudsman's finding, it would appear that any ticket issued by the council's CCTV system may well have been issued illegally and I advise any person who has received such a ticket to ask the council for a refund of any charge they have paid.

I would be happy to assist Mrs York and agree to you passing on my details should she get in touch.

ALMOST half of Enfield Council homes sold under Margaret Thatcher's popular Right to Buy policy are now rented out by private landlords, it has been revealed.

A report, From Right to Buy to Buy to Let, which was published on Monday, has found that since the introduction nearly 34 years ago of the policy, which allows council tenants to buy their rented homes at considerable discounts, 2,264 out of 4,539 properties – 49.9 per cent – sold by the council are now owned and rented out by private landlords.

The report, which was commissioned by Labour London Assembly member Tom Copley, raised concerns over the cost to the taxpayer due to the higher housing benefit payments being paid to tenants in former council homes that are now charged at market rates, as well as the fact that some local authorities are renting back properties they previously sold in order to house homeless families.

Ahmet Oykener, Enfield's cabinet member for housing, called for a "right not to sell" for local authorities to be introduced.

"Sometimes, we need to be able to stop sales of council homes," he said. "We have a great shortage of affordable housing, and we do not get to retain all of the receipt of sales of properties."

"We cannot replace one council home with another by building new. We need to sell six or so homes before we raise enough cash to build a new home, so we keep losing stock under Right to Buy."

Edward Smith, shadow cabinet member for housing, said: "There is an issue here of unintended consequences. I believe Right to Buy is a good thing because a mix of tenure on council estates is desirable."

"But it is not good if people use it as a way to become private landlords and charge higher rents."

"One thing the council can do as part of the regeneration schemes around the borough, which we support, is to ensure that properties for sale on the private market are reserved for people who want

Private landlords snap up homes of ex-council tenants

to live in them, and not buy-to-let landlords."

The research found that since the introduction of Right to Buy in 1980, more than 271,438 council homes have been lost from the local authority housing stock in London.

Last March, the government reinvigorated the policy by offering discounts of up to £100,000 for tenants in London keen to buy their council homes.

Dad plans Muslim primary school

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A FATHER who sparked fierce debate 15 months ago over plans for teaching "life skills" to youngsters, is planning to set up the borough's first Muslim primary school.

Mark Barrett, 45, of Avenue Road, Southgate, told the Advertiser in October 2012 that he wanted to create an education that would specialise in preparing children for life outside the school gates.

After he was inundated with responses to his proposals, he joined forces with a group of other parents and teachers interested in setting up an entirely different kind of school in the borough.

And this steering committee is now on the verge of submitting a proposal for a new Muslim free school in Enfield to the Department for Education.

Mr Barrett is a convert to Islam and explained he was spurred into action after years of trying to fit religious education around his children's schooling.

Converted: Mark Barrett is on the verge of submitting plans for a Muslim free school in the borough

"My kids have been confused about their identity," said Mr Barrett.

"They go to a madrassa in Southgate on Saturdays as well as their ordinary primary on weekdays. They do sometimes wonder about which side of themselves they have to show."

Watching them struggle with this dilemma prompted him to think about how he could create a school that could unify both parts of his children's lives.

"We want to show what the original inspiration of Islam was about," he said.

"It was egalitarian and we want a school that turns religion to how it should be, that teaches fully what it means to be a British Muslim in the 21st century,"

Mr Barrett's original ambition was to teach parenting, DIY, cookery and other life skills to primary school children – and he insists that he still wants these skills to be taught in any school which the group manages to establish.

"On Fridays, we would want the pupils to go out into their communities and build relationships in the community and link it to their faith as Islam teaches that we should be a blessing to humanity," he added.

At this stage Mr Barrett and his colleagues are keen to consult parents to find out if there is a need and a demand in the area for a new primary school.

The group is thinking about sites in Edmonton or Palmers Green and will be holding meetings at Green Towers Community Centre, in Plevna Road, Edmon-ton, on January 25 and at Trinity-at-Bowes Community Centre, in Palmerston Road, Palmers Green, on February 1.

Date set for Tulisa's trial

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

FORMER X Factor judge Tulisa Contostavlos and rapper Michael Coombs have been told they will stand trial this summer for their part in an alleged drugs deal.

Mr Coombs, 35, of Velocity Way, Enfield Lock, and Miss Contostavlos, 25, of Princess Park Manor, Friern Barnet, appeared in the dock at Southwark Crown Court last Thursday morning for a brief preliminary hearing.

The singer is accused of being concerned in the supply of class A drugs after The Sun on Sunday newspaper reported that she had helped an undercover reporter buy 13.9grams of cocaine for £860 between May 20 and May 24 last year.

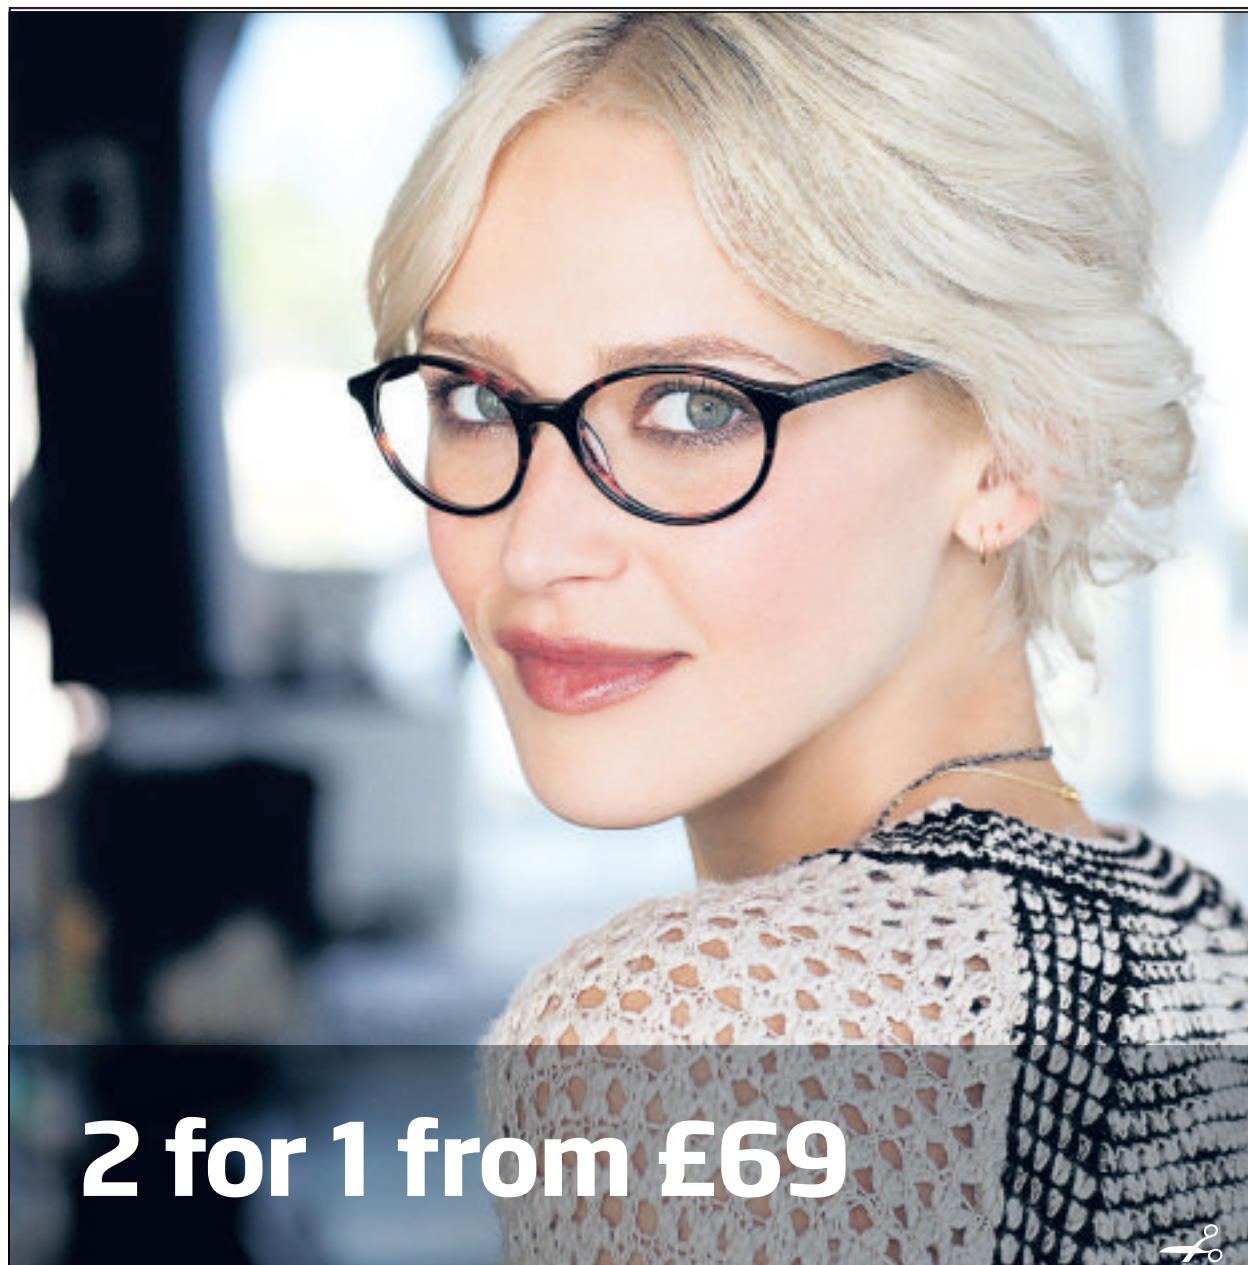

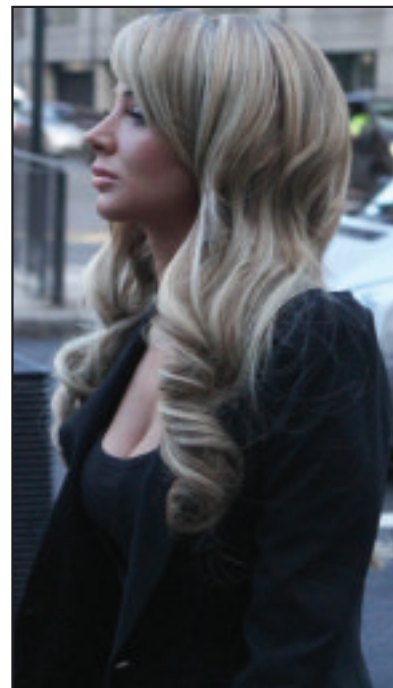

Mr Coombs is accused of supplying cocaine to the undercover reporter on May 23 last year.

The two were bailed to return to Southwark Crown Court on March 27 for a plea and case management hearing and their trial is due to start on July 14 – the day after the former N-Dubz singer's 26th birthday.

In a statement outside court, Miss Contostavlos' solicitor Ben Rose, of Hickman and Rose solicitors, told reporters that his client would be pleading not guilty.

Shed loads of fun at theatre

AS Chickenshed sets out on its 40th anniversary year, now is as good time as any to get involved in the world-renowned theatre school.

From next weekend, Saturday Shed will be launching for the year, aimed at five to 12-year-olds. And from Friday, January 24, youngsters up the age of seven will be able to join in the fun with Tales From The Shed.

Saturday Shed is a series of sessions using the inclusive theatre company's proven teaching methods and style to develop children's performance skills.

The hour-long, themed sessions at the theatre in Chase Side, which can be attended on a drop-in, pay-as-you-go basis, or for a whole term, will explore different skills through movement, drama, singing and story-making.

Tales From The Shed is an informal hour-long vibrant, interactive theatre show during which the audience and performers share the same space.

There is a lot of puppetry and live songs and children are encouraged to make loads of noise. Performances are £6, and free for babies under six months.

Saturday Shed is £6 a session, with a 35 per cent discount for a block booking of eight classes. Classes start from January 25, with ages five to eight beginning at 10am and aged nine to 12 from 11.15am.

Forum poets: David Blake, Phil Mirams, Ruth Hanchett, Judy Klimt and Ann Marie Nicholson

Poets' corner for the over 50s

By Jonathon Manning

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A POETRY anthology has been published featuring the musings of men and women who have reached the half-century mark.

The collection, titled Getting Older, is the second publication from the Enfield Over 50s Forum Poetry Group, which has been running since 2008.

Contributing poet Ruth Hanchett said: "The important thing about this theme is that it does not say getting old, but getting older. It is a very carefully chosen title."

She believes that the collection should relate to all readers as everyone has experienced changes in their life, regardless of their age.

The idea to publish the anthology came from a presentation Ruth gave on the theme which was well received by the group.

With the help of fellow poets Judy Klimt and Irene Richards, work began on a publication which eventually included work from Ann Marie Nicholson, David Blake and Phil Mirams.

Past poems have covered a number of subjects including the sea, the weather and music.

David Blake, who also co-ordinates the group, said: "We try and get somebody different each month to select a theme."

"From one subject we get such a diverse range of ideas as everybody has a different look at it."

As well as publishing their own work, submissions were also accepted from members of the Over 50s forum.

Aspiring poets are welcome to go along, but must become members of the forum as subscription fees cover the cost of the meetings.

January's session is being led by David, who has chosen springtime as his theme. February's meeting will focus on inspiration.

The anthology can be bought from the forum for £3.50 and can posted for an extra 60p.

Meetings are held on the third Thursday of every month. This week's meeting takes place at Oakwood Library, in Bramley Road, between 10.30am and noon.

ATTILA THE STOCKBROKER @ BUTLER'S BAR

7:30 PM SATURDAY 1 FEBRUARY 2013

SHARP-TONGUED, HIGH ENERGY, SOCIAL SURREALIST REBEL POET AND SONGWRITER. HIS THEMES ARE TOPICAL, HIS WORDS HARD-HITTING, HIS POLITICS UNASHAMEDLY RADICAL, BUT ATTILA WILL MAKE YOU ROAR WITH LAUGHTER AS WELL AS SEETHE WITH ANGER...

Inspired by the great Sussex poet Hilaire Belloc and punk, especially The Clash, he did his first gig on 8 Sept 1980, shouting poems in between punk bands. He quickly got two John Peel sessions and was on the front cover of Melody Maker - and he hasn't looked back since...

He's done about 2,800 more in 24 countries - at venues ranging from the Glastonbury Festival (every year since 1983) and countless other music and literature festivals in the UK, Europe, America, Canada, Australia and New Zealand to freezing punk squats in Germany to the Law Society and the Oxford Union and a hotel basement in Stalinist Albania.

He's released 6 books of poems and over 20 CDs/LPs, formerly with people like Unwins, Bloodaxe and Cherry Red Records, latterly via his own global cottage industry, Roundhead. (No cavalier attitudes!)

Attila is also a massive football fan, as reflected in his material, and a supporter of fans owned clubs - that's why he is playing at Enfield Town FC. He is poet in residence at Brighton and Hove Albion and his Goldstone Ghosts poem is on the walls of the supporters' bar at the Amex. He also coordinates his gigs with the Brighton fixture list and will be doing this gig on the way home from Albion's game at Watford.

As this is a football club gig you can expect a higher football content to the act than might normally be the case.

ENFIELD'S HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL DAY EVENT MONDAY 27 JANUARY

Enfield Council invites you to our Holocaust Memorial Day event in the Dugdale Theatre, Thomas Hardy House, Enfield Town, at 7pm on Monday 27 January 2014.

This is the 14th year that we have commemorated Holocaust Memorial Day, and this year, American actress, Susan Stein is performing a version of her one-woman play Etty based on the diaries and letters of Etty Hillesum. Esther "Etty" Hillesum was a young Dutch Jewish student living in Amsterdam during WWII.

She began a diary on 8 March 1941 to help her with her depression. Etty's diaries and letters from 1941 - 1943 describe life in Nazi-occupied Holland and Westerbork Transit Camp where she was interned. Etty Hillesum was 29 years old when she was murdered on 30 November 1941 at Auschwitz/Birkenau.

Enfield artist, Moshe Galili, a Holocaust Survivor is exhibiting some of his Holocaust paintings at the Dugdale Centre from 20 January - 17 February. They depict a time when he was in hiding in Hungary.

The evening starts with refreshments from 6.30 pm, and is always very popular, so please book your free place as early as possible.

FILM DIGEST

Full steam ahead for 'British' Firth

HE has played some of Britain's most celebrated characters, from Jane Austen's heart-throb Mr Darcy in the BBC adaptation of Pride And Prejudice and modern-day love interest Mark Darcy in Bridget Jones' Diary, to King George VI in The King's Speech - but Colin Firth finds the idea of being the archetypal British gent a little odd. "I've never felt entirely English, really," says the actor, currently appearing on big screens in The Railway Man.

In fact, Firth has had a culturally diverse life - his parents were brought up in India, as a child he lived in Nigeria and, since 1997, the 53-year-old has been married to Italian creative director Livia Giuggioli.

"I've never felt I quite slotted in perfectly. Perhaps that's why it [acting] all happened," he says. "You put on a mask, an identity, and it fits all too well. I might be like one of those ex-patriots who seem more British than the people who actually live in Britain."

His latest film, The Railway Man, will do little to shake this British label.

It is powerful stuff, telling the true story of Eric Lomax, an Edinburgh-born engineer and British Army officer who, during World War Two, was captured and tortured at the hands of the Japanese, while being forced to help build the infamous Death Railway.

Eric, played by Firth, was eventually freed but suffered from post-traumatic stress disorder, which he described in his 1995 autobiography The Railway Man.

Despite Eric's dark past, trains would always make him smile. "He had such a twinkle when he talked about it," says Firth of Eric, who died, aged 93, in 2012.

While reading his book, Firth found himself getting excited about engines, too.

"I quite like trains anyway," he admits. "But he imparted such delight in a world when these things were still new, it made me envy the steam age, how magnificent these monstrous machines were."

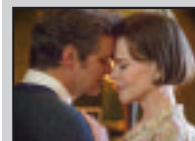

"So the books I got for research weren't just about World War Two. I started to get books about trains, too."

Understanding what Eric went through was more of a challenge, however.

Firth says: "I was meeting a man whose story was still going on, even in his 90s. It didn't stop with the end of World War Two, it didn't end when he wrote his book. It was still unfolding."

He continues: "We're telling a story that is to do with the power of storytelling and how detrimental it is not to be able to tell your story, even to those closest to you."

"We had the job of somehow continuing the storytelling process. So there was a sense of responsibility, pressure and privilege."

Married couple: Colin Firth and Nicole Kidman in the movie

The Railway Man (15) WHEN we first meet ardent train enthusiast Eric (Colin Firth), he is safely ensconced in a first-class carriage, casting nervous glances at the lady sitting opposite.

Eventually he strikes up a conversation with Patricia Wallace (Nicole Kidman), who is visiting the north of England based on recommendations from a friend.

"With all due respect to your friend, if all he's mentioned is vodka, he's only scratched the surface of Warrington," sweetly blusters Eric.

He engineers another meeting with Patti further up the line and they fall in love and marry.

It quickly becomes clear to Patti that there is something troubling in Eric's past, but her efforts to help are dismissed.

"You will never again attempt to discuss matters which do not concern you. There's no objection, I hope?" Eric firmly tells his wife.

So she seeks out best friend Finlay (Stellan Skarsgård), hoping he can reveal the scars of the past and ease her spouse's suffering.

"A lot of men went through something you can't even begin to imagine," says Finlay.

Ultimately, he recounts to Patti, and us, the horrors faced by young Eric (Jeremy Irvine) and fellow soldiers at the Sakamoto Butai camp. In cinemas now.

Homeless people let their hair down at dinner dance

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

MORE than 60 members of the homeless community were treated to a four-course meal at the weekend.

Members of the Lancaster Road United Reformed Church held their annual Christmas and New Year supper for people living on the streets, in hostels and temporary accommodation at the church hall in Armfield Road, Enfield.

Saturday's event is the largest of seven suppers which the church provides throughout the year.

The initiative began about 20 years ago when a young church member said he wanted to do something to help less fortunate people, explained

Graham Carlisle, who co-ordinates the events.

"We put on a four-course meal," said Mr Carlisle, "including traditional turkey, Christmas pudding and a cheese course.

"It's not a soup kitchen type of affair – we have waitress service and we get a band together.

"Some of the guests dance – it's an opportunity to let their hair down. Everyone leaves with a party bag including things like gloves and hats, toothpaste and toothbrushes."

This event was attended by Mayor of Enfield Chaudhury Anwar.

Mr Carlisle said: "I was invited to the mayor's tea party at the Autumn Town Show and we talked about the dinner there and he asked to come along – he seemed impressed."

And Mr Anwar told the Advertiser: "It was a wonderful event and I was impressed by the significant number of volunteers.

"I spoke to every guest and I think they said they look forward to this particular event throughout the year."

Guests come from across north London for the event, details of which are often shared by word of mouth.

Throughout last year, the Waitrose store in Palace Gardens, Enfield Town, sponsored the cost of the food at the events, which totals around £1,200 annually.

The next supper will be held on February 22. Anyone who would like more information can call Mr Carlisle on 020 8364 5672.

Add your voice to new choir for the over 50s

By Jonathon Manning

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A DAYTIME group is being launched by a choir for the over 50s who want to sing but who are unable to make evening meetings.

The sessions, which start next month, are being launched by Enfield Community Singers.

Director Simon Gilbert said: "The choir will bring people together whether male, or female, and across cultures to promote community spirit."

The new choir will run alongside the existing group, whose 40 adult members meet on Tuesday evenings at Millfield House, in Silver Street, Edmonton.

Mr Gilbert, who acts as the choir's voice coach, is keen to promote the physical and social benefits the group offers its members.

He said: "Singing is very stimulating for the health and for the soul and spirit."

There's no reason to be daunted as there are no auditions and potential singers are not required to be able to read sheet music.

The choir performs popular favourites including Edelweiss, As Time Goes By, True Love, Consider Yourself and Amazing Grace, as well as a selection of songs from London.

Mr Gilbert added: "If you love to sing, want to learn some great songs and have a really good time, then please get in touch and come along."

New members are always welcome, with men particularly in demand.

The group has already been boosted by seven new faces signing up when the Community Singers held their first meeting after Christmas.

Anyone interested in joining should call Mr Gilbert on 020 8360 7386 or email simon@letthepeoplesing.co.uk

The two-hour sessions cost £5 and will be held on Mondays between 11am and 1pm at St Mary Magdalene Church, in Windmill Hill, Enfield.

SMART THINKING LEADS TO SMART RENTING (& SMART MONEY)

Maximize your rental income potential with smart thinking from the Smart Housing Group

With yields of up to 6% and more in some parts of London, the rental market can offer a profitable return on your money and here's how to enjoy the peace of mind of a hassle-free landlord experience. It's this peace of mind that is offered by the Smart Housing Group.

Many landlords now coming into the market lack experience or have many other demands on their time. Property renting can be profitable, but it can also be a minefield.

The problems of bad tenants defaulting on the rent or damaging the property can often deter a prospective landlord. There is also the risk that some tenants might perhaps become litigious if rental properties are not compliant or not maintained to the required standards.

These issues and many others are resolved when Smart Housing Group manages your rental property. The Smart Housing Group rental service offers:

- ▶ A waiting list of potential tenants
- ▶ Guaranteed rent throughout the lease period
- ▶ Regular property inspections and in-house maintenance.
- ▶ Managed tenancies

All the landlord needs to do is enjoy the return on their investment. That's what we call smart thinking!

PETER GRAFF - MOVING WITH THE TIMES

Having been established in Winchmore Hill since the late 1980s, we decided to move ourselves! Like most of our clients we love Winchmore Hill so decided not to move far. Unlike most of our clients though, next door was perfect and provided the ideal location.

Moving was a good reminder for us of the complications and difficulties our clients face when all your accumulated belongings over 25 years need to be boxed up etc. And how even when the distance is short the planning and organisation is paramount.

It's why we are constantly in touch throughout any transaction – whether it's a first time buyer or a seasoned mover/client. Communication and experience is vital for our clients and ourselves so that their lives can continue with as little disruption as possible. That's what we are paid for and we enjoy doing it.

Now, in our brand newly designed offices, we have finished with the decoration, plumbing, builders and electricians and can concentrate solely on our existing and future clients. Our website has been updated and our image refreshed but our attitude will not change. Good honest professional advice, as members of the National Association of Estate Agents and of the Association of Residential Letting Agents. We look forward to the time when all agents are licensed. There really should be minimum standards when advising people on such an expensive asset.

Anyway, off our hobbyhorse. The market is improving rapidly; mortgages are more readily available and so 2014 looks to be an excellent time to move.

If you are looking for advice on either renting or selling your property in Winchmore Hill, Southgate, Palmers Green or the surrounding areas, ring us up. We are a fount of information and always happy to help. We are excited about 2014 and look forward to achieving quality results for our clients. If moving is on the agenda, please give us a call and ask for Brian Graff or Sue Reed in the first instance.

A very happy New Year.

Almost everything a family could ask for

By Matt Kimberley

SOME things never change, and plenty of people like it that way. The question I'm pondering is whether you can or cannot apply that reasoning to the new Honda Civic Tourer.

The Civic has a duality to its reputation that no other car can quite match. On one hand, is the boy racer's favourite, with screaming VTEC petrol engines and pin-sharp chassis dynamics. On the other hand, is the safe and reliable hatchback popular with the elderly.

Honda says the compact estate category is growing again and the new Civic Tourer aims to put young families directly in its sights.

So I shall do my best to look at the car through a family man's eyes.

The Tourer's long, sleek profile is fantastic, but the surface detailing is upset slightly by the bodywork-flush glass around the boot area that sits incongruously next to the door windows, naturally slightly recessed and edged by visible rubber seals.

"Will the family man worry about that though?" I ask myself. Maybe not.

He will definitely worry about boot space, though, so I lift the impressively well-assisted tailgate and peer into space, 624 litres of it, which is class-leading and 19 litres ahead of the Golf estate.

Some 117 litres of this space is under the main boot floor in a separate, covered compartment, saving cases, coats and bags from ping-pong about like the plastic marbles in a game of Hungry Hippos.

The fuel tank has been shifted forward, to underneath the front seats, to allow for maximum boot space.

There are also plenty of cubbyholes and storage solutions in the cabin, including a big central one that doubles as the location for the multiple media input ports and one of the two 12-volt power sockets that should let kids charge a compatible device on the move.

But that's enough of the family man charade. I want to drive it and see if it's more "young gun", "old chap" – or neither.

Firstly, the ride is good, with the SR model's adaptive damper system in normal mode doing a sterling job of quelling bounce and absorbing bumps, even if the suspension is a bit loud at times.

Secondly, the wide, soft seats are more comfortable than my own sofa.

Thirdly, and frustratingly, the two digital screens are old-school in look and function. Graphics seemingly aping the 1982 film Tron don't help and the way the collected buttons and digital sub-menus are designed and laid out simply isn't user-friendly.

Another negative point is the steering, which on the open road is too light and devoid of feel, or gives the impression thereof, to a degree I've almost never experienced before.

To give it its due, the system is comfortable in town, so the school run, multi-storey car parks and low-speed lane changes in traffic are dealt with easily.

The petrol engine is smoother and quieter than the gutsier and more frugal diesel, so you'll need to do the maths on whether the fuel economy and road tax savings – it's free for the diesel – are enough to overcome the near-£1,200 price hike.

Almost everything a great everyday car needs is in place. So, if your needs fit its big-booted and comfortable-seated talents and if the dated technology doesn't bother you, enjoy a car that will probably handle everything you can throw at it. Now that's a car I could put my family in.

DEFOE RELISHING MOVE TO TORONTO

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

JERMAIN DEFOE insists that the time is right for him to leave Tottenham Hotspur after he agreed a deal to join MLS outfit Toronto.

The England international striker – who has struggled to secure a regular spot in Spurs' starting line-up this season – will leave White Hart Lane at the end of February, and he admitted that the move to Toronto was too good an opportunity for him to turn down.

"Everyone knows how much this club means to me, and I will play my heart out for the team and the fans until my last kick for Spurs," Defoe, who scored his first Premier League goal of the season during Saturday's 2-0 win over Crystal Palace, said. "I have had a fantastic time at Tottenham and the fans have always been amazing to me.

"But at the age of 31 it is a great opportunity for me and my family. I've been through some things with my family over the last few years and sometimes it is nice to have a change.

"I only had a year left on my contract at Tottenham. If you have a year left and someone comes in and offers you four, you have to think about it and consider your options. It's as simple as that."

Head coach Tim Sherwood was quick to pay tribute to the impact that Defoe has had during his two spells with the club, and insists that Spurs' squad is strong enough to cope with his impending departure.

"This is a great opportunity for Jermain and he feels it is one that he wishes to pursue," he said. "He has played a big part in the club for many years and we all know he will give his best until his last minute in a Spurs shirt.

"We have several attacking options within our squad for the remaining dozen or so games of the season after Jermain departs, and we shall keep our options under review.

"We also have a goal threat from players in other areas of the pitch, including having wide players and attacking midfielders who will enable us to vary our shape when required."

And Sherwood firmly believes that Defoe should form part of England's squad for this year's World Cup in Brazil, despite his imminent move to the MLS.

"Wherever Jermain plays, anywhere in the world, he will score goals," he added. "That's why I would say he's an automatic choice to be on that plane for Brazil.

"You always need goalscorers. I think in this country we've got good young talents but I'm not sure that we've got many better goalscorers than Jermain.

"It was a good finish against Crystal Palace – typical Jermain. That's what he does. It was a bit of a scruffy effort, but he's pounced on it and stuck it away in the corner."

Sherwood praises second-half performance

TIM SHERWOOD was pleased with the way in which Tottenham Hotspur managed to recover from a poor first-half display to seal a 2-0 win at home to lowly Crystal Palace in the Premier League on Saturday.

Spurs struggled in the opening 45 minutes at White Hart Lane and were lucky not to fall behind when Jason Puncheon blazed woe-fully high and wide from the penalty spot.

But the hosts were much improved in the second period and goals from Christian Eriksen and Jermain Defoe gave them their fourth win in five league games since Sherwood took over as head coach.

He said: "What pleased me the most is that although we were disappointing in the first half, we were able to turn that around into a positive performance in the second half.

"They came at us in the first half and caught us by surprise. They had attacking options, were powerful in the wide areas and delivered a lot of balls into our box. In all honesty, they were unlucky not to go ahead when they missed the penalty. We capitalised on that.

"We had a few words at half-time and the lads came back out and showed a lot of character. We really dug in.

"You can't win football matches without showing character and desire. They outshone us in that regard in the first half, but once we came to terms with it and matched them and showed some spirit, our quality shone through.

"Even though we didn't play well in the first half, there was a belief that we would go on and win. We had to put the pieces together. Credit to the lads for doing that, and we managed to get the points. It's not always going to be pretty, sometimes we're going to have to dig it out, and we did that."

Delight for Broncos as Bryan signs

FORMER London Bronco Lamont Bryan has become the latest player to sign for the London Skolars ahead of the new rugby league season.

Bryan is no stranger to the New River Stadium, having made a significant contribution to the Skolars' 2012 campaign – when he made 18 appearance and scored eight tries while on dual registration from the Broncos.

His fine displays in Championship One did not go unnoticed and last year he signed to play for Featherstone Rovers in the Championship, scoring six tries in 24 appearances.

Despite a lot of interest in his signature, Bryan has decided to return to the Skolars – much to the delight of head coach Joe Mbu.

"Lamont is another key signing for the club," he said. "He is familiar with the set-up here and knows most of the lads really well from his time here and at the Broncos.

"The squad is taking shape nicely and Lamont is another quality addition whom the supporters really appreciated when he played here in 2012."

Bryan, a Jamaican international, is set to make his first appearance since returning to the club later this month when they take on a Wigan Warriors XIII in the Capital Challenge at the Honourable Artillery Club in the city of London on January 24.

Skolars' general manager Howard Kramer said: "Tickets sales are already more than 50 per cent up on last year's Capital Challenge.

"The news that Lamont has signed for the club should make the match even more of a must-see for rugby league fans in London."
